Norco College - The First 25 Years

“Wilfred J. Airey”

Norco IMC invites you to take a look back to the important contributions made by Wilfred J. Airey.

Wilfred Jonathan Airey was an educator and vital contributor to the creation of Norco College.

Beginning in 1964, as an original member of the first elected RCCD Board of Trustees, he served for 30 years during a critical time of construction and growth of educational programs and services.

In 1983, at the instigation of Dr. Airey, The RCCD Board of Trustees toured the U.S. Navy property located in Norco as a potential college campus location. The deal was made for 141 acres of land to build the future community college.

The vision came to fruition when the college opened in 1991. The Wilfred J. Airey Library is named after him and was dedicated in his name to commemorate his important support for the development of the campus.
