SPEAKER SERIES

She, They, "Sis"

Melissa M. Murphy

Do it afraid first, then with confidence

You may be wondering "how in the world am I going to accomplish my wildest dreams from where I'm at right now"? You're not alone - everyone feels this way, especially college students. But it shouldn't stop you from moving forward and going after your dreams. Through conversation and activated dialogue, you will be provided with strategic and successful next steps that will aid you into moving confidently and unapologetically into your destiny.

Melissa Muganzo Murphy is a proud Queer-Black woman. She is an actress, producer, and entertainer. She is a graduate of UC Davis ('11) and Sacramento State ('13) and launched her production company in 2018. When Melissa is not memorizing lines or curating productions, you can find her re-watching Beyonce documentaries or cracking up to social media memes over a glass of champagne or red wine. Melissa is the CEO of Muganzo Entertainment and Executive Director of The Big Hysto: A Black Womb Revolution. To follow her journey, visit www.muganzoentertainment.com or @muganzoentertainment on Instagram.

More Information

This event will be led by Melissa Muganzo and will discuss the pursuit, and accomplishing, of the dreams you seek for yourself. The speaking event will discuss how the very real fear of the pursuit is not isolating—but shared—between many college students. Through conversation and activated dialogue, you will be provided with strategic and successful next steps to aid you into moving confidently, and unapologetically, into your destiny.
